Injury Expected To Keep Ruth Out Of Today's Game

Seventh-Inning Rally Wins Third Game for Giants—Final Score Is 13 to 5.

YOUNG GETS TWO HITS IN THE SAME INNING

Barnes Stops Yankees After Toney Is Knocked Out in Third Inning. Shawkey Wild.

RUTH HAS ABSCESS ON ARM AT ELBOW

New York, October 7.—Babe Ruth was suffering tonight from a severe abscess on his left arm, which his physician said made it doubtful if he could get into the game tomorrow and may prevent him from playing for several days.

During Thursday's game Ruth stole second and then third, sliding into the latter bag and bruising his elbow. The injury became infected while he was playing. It caused him so much pain in today's game that he withdrew after getting a base on balls in the eighth inning, leaving Chick Fewster to run for him.

An examination of the injury was made tonight by Dr. George D. Stewart. "It is doubtful if Ruth will be able to play tomorrow," he said. "I am going to examine his arm again in the morning."

BY WILLIAM SLEAVENS MINUTY, United News Staff Correspondent.

Polo Grounds, New York, October 7.—The New York Giants should put a figure seven in their club house and salute the number as they pass by, for it was on the seventh inning of the game on the seventh day of the month that the National league corps came to life.

Reared on its hind legs, took the astounded Xanks by the hair and snarled, the American league champions al lowed the assembly. The score was 14 to 5.

The Giants had played twenty-four gloomy innings without once leading their opponents. They had gone twenty innings without a score when Mr. Shawkey, technically pitching for the Yanks, got to thinking about the old days in the navy, or the income tax, or something else that had nothing to do with baseball, and absolutely compelled the Giants to score by forcing them home with four balls when the bases were loaded.

The Giants did not seem to really want to score up to that time, but Bob Shawkey persisted in forcing them across the plate. After the two Giants had been compelled to score, Peckinpah, the Yankee captain, sent Mr. Shawkey on an important errand to some quiet spot where he could think about whatever he was thinking about, and not be bothered with such troublesome things as baseball players with bats in their hands.

Quinn Called.

Old Jack Quinn was called in to pass the ball to the boys, and he served them so well that when the inning was ended the poor old National league fast-tastic machine, that hadn't had anything to eat for days and days, found its tummy digested by four bats, nourishing runs.

In the first half of the third inning the Yankees had eaten a buffet lunch delivered by Mr. Toney, a large man who wears a Giant uniform, and is reported to be, or to have been, or about to become a pitcher. One must take the word of the record book for this, for Mr. Toney offered no evidence to day to support the rumor that he is a baseball player. The Yanks partook of four runs while he was serving up the goodies in the first half of the third, and so, when the last half was over everything was even again. The score, 4-4.

Mr. Toney had gone away to get himself a bath and talk things over with the banished Shawkey. Barnes was pitching for the Giants and old jack Quinn for the Yanks. That's how it stood when the fourth inning began.

From then on until the last half

CHANGED METHODS OF EXPENDITURES FOR NEW CONGRESS

Work of Bureau of Budget to Be Seen When the Budget Bill Comes Up in December.

APPROPRIATION BILLS COMPLETELY REVISED

Each Department's Needs Will Be Entirely Covered in One Bill for Simplification.

WANT NEW JUDGESHIP DISTRICTS DESIGNATED

Claim That Liquor Cases Are Chief Cause of Crowded Dockets Is Rebutted by Taft.

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON, Constitution Bureau, Raleigh, N.C.

Washington, October 7.—(By Constitution Leased Wires)—An investigation by the Constitution discloses that southern democrats in congress will very largely oppose the bill to create eighteen additional federal judgeships in the United States to be allocated at the will of the department of justice.

The thirteen appropriation bills which heretofore have contained all the authorizations for the administrative branches will be entirely revised, and the powerful appropriations committee of the house will be reorganized.

There will be twelve new bills, and each department and bureau will have all of its appropriations in a single bill, while heretofore the appropriations have been scattered through several measures.

The sundry civil bill, and the legislative, executive and judicial bill, which have been a confused collection of authorizations, will be abolished. There will be a subcommittee of the appropriations committee for each bill.

It is anticipated, as claimed by Chief Justice Taft and by Attorney-General Daugherty, that there are various states, including Georgia, in which an additional district will not only serve to relieve federal court congestion, but will serve well in a better enforcement of law through the prompt and expeditious handling of cases, but democrats from the south see in the present plan too strong a party temptation to plant republican anchors in doubtful states, thereby defeating possibly the very purpose for which the bill ostensibly seeks to accomplish.

It is believed by many southern democrats that if eighteen new judges are created and allocated by the republican administration the south will not gain any of them, and the new senators will be appointed by the new senators.

The formation of this agency is to carry out the purposes of the amendment to the war finance act, which was passed by congress in August for the particular purpose of affording relief for agricultural and live stock interests.

The other excise provisions of the senate bill would stand, including an excise on motor vehicles.

Southerners will vote for new judges if the new districts and those districts in which additional judges will be assigned, are specifically named, provided the legal necessity for such additional judges is beyond dispute. Otherwise, as a rule, will not.

The claim that national prohibition is the chief cause of crowded federal court dockets was refuted in the hearing before the senate judiciary committee on Wednesday.

Chief Justice Taft called attention to the fact that the liquor law prosecutions were only about 8 per cent of the cases. Judge Sater stated that "it is the civil cases that constitute the heavy burden of the court's work, and the criminal side is comparatively easy.

Some Combinations.

Appropriations for the departments of state and justice—which are small—will be contained in one measure under the new system. Commerce and labor likewise will be combined. There will be a separate bill for all independent establishments, and another for the legislative establishment. Fortifications, Indian diplomatic and consular, pension, and river and harbor appropriations will be abolished, and the authorizations will be made directly to the departments under which the expenditures will be made.

The rearrangement of the bills, said Madden, will also provide a more even and equitable distribution among the subcommittees of the sum committed to the department of justice for considering the budget, and will permit a more effective and economical consideration of appropriations than has heretofore been.

Madden said the committee also has undertaken the task of the so-called "clean-up" of appropriations.

As spokesman of a number of office building owners, E. M. Horine declared that the present ordinance is the statute book governing elevators and their operation is adequate, and if this law had been complied with the death of Assistant Fire Chief Chapman, who lost his life recently by plunging into an open elevator shaft while fighting a fire, was stated that a door opening to the shaft had been left open in violation of the law.

Elevator Heavy Expense.

Mr. Horine stated that some of the big office buildings in Atlanta are equipped with hydraulic elevators and that would entail heavy expense to equip them with electrical locking devices.

The committee voted to appoint a committee composed of Councilman Alvin Richards, the chairman; Councilman W. D. Hoffman, one of the authors of the measure, and City Electrician R. C. Turner, to confer with the building owners to see if they could agree on some safety ordinance.

A number of florists represented by Attorney William Arnaud, requested the committee to banish the flower vendors from the downtown streets. He stated that they sell themselves permanently.

Proposed points of traffic hindrance and to unify combination with the regularly established florists.

Postoffice officials, engaged in checking their records with Canadian officials, said the value of the registered mail probably exceeded $100,000.

War Finance Board Agency Organized to Aid Farmers Of Georgia and Florida

SOUTH TO OPPOSE MORE U.S. JUDGES BILL IN CONGRESS

John K. Ottley Is Chairman of Important Body and Robert E. Harvey Is Elected Secretary.

MILLIONS ARE READY TO LEND TO GROWERS

Many Proposed Changes Would Leave Total Revenue the Same, Merely Shifting Burden.

MANY 'NUISANCE' TAXES WOULD BE REPEALED

Duties on Sport Goods, Chewing Gum, Toilet Articles, Perfumes and Miscellaneous Taxes to Go.

Washington, October 7.—Amendments to the pending tax revision bill agreed to by republican leaders in the senate were made public today formally in advance of their consideration tomorrow by majority members of the finance committee.

The agency, it is stated, will be of material aid to farmers of this section, as it plans to adopt a liberal credit on the same basis as that employed by the War Finance corporation in its heavy advances of the recent past for exportation of cotton.

This committee is composed of John K. Ottley, president of the Fourth National bank, chairman; L. R. Adams, secretary Bankers' Trust company and Country Bankers' association of Georgia, vice chairman; Robert E. Harvey was elected secretary and will be in charge of the agency office in the Palmer building.

The full membership of this committee is as follows:

John K. Ottley, of Atlanta; L. R. Adams, of Atlanta; W. F. Conover, chairman of the board of directors of the Consolidated Naval Marine company, of Jacksonville, Fla.; T. L. Wilson, president of the Folk Union, of Rockdale, Barrow, Fla.; M. B. Lane, Savannah, president Citizens and Southern banks; A. E. Young, vice president Commercial bank, Odessa, Fla.; D. M. Lowry, president, Capital City bank, Tallahassee, Fla.; C. W. Skinner, president, Bank of Waycross, Waycross, Ga.

A graduated increase in the estate tax rates to a minimum of 50 per cent on the excess over $10,000,000, in lieu of the present maximum of 26 per cent over $10,000,000.

Repeal of the excises on sport goods, chewing gums, perfumes, essences, tooth and mouth washes and pastes, dentifrices, toilet powders and soap and soap powders and other miscellaneous taxes sufficient to make up a cut of $37,000,000 annually.

An increase of $2.20 a gallon to $4 a gallon in the tax on distilled spirits produced, imported or withdrawn from bond for use for industrial, medicinal or other purposes.

Capital Stock Tax.

Restoration of the capital stock tax of $1 on each $1,000 of invested capital.

A graduated increase in the estate tax rates to a minimum of 50 per cent on the excess over $10,000,000, in lieu of the present maximum of 26 per cent over $10,000,000.

Repeal of the excises on sport goods, chewing gums, perfumes, essences, tooth and mouth washes and pastes, dentifrices, toilet powders and soap and soap powders and other miscellaneous taxes sufficient to make up a cut of $37,000,000 annually.

Elimination of the proposed tax on hotel accommodations.

Reduction in the tax on candy to 5 per cent, with elimination of the committee proposal for a 10 per cent tax on candy selling at wholesale for more than 40 cents a pound.

Others to be affected.

The other excise provisions of the senate bill would stand, including

January 1, a flat tax of 15 per cent on corporation incomes and increased exemptions for heads of families and on account of dependents.

While repeal of the $2,000 exemption allowed corporations is not included in the program as announced, leaders were endeavoring to night to work out a plan which would protect small corporations and at the same time remove the exemptions from large corporations.

The suggestion meeting with the most favor was to allow the exemption in the case of corporations having net incomes less than $20,000 or $25,000.

House leaders today declared against increasing the surtax rate beyond the 33 per cent maximum fixed in the bill as it passed the house. Representative Mondell, of Wyoming, the republican leader, and Chairman Fordney, of the ways and means committee, expressed themselves very frankly on this subject before going into a conference with the committee, to discuss the changes as agreed to by the senate leaders.

"Patriotic Spirit."

Neither Mr. Fordney nor Mr. Mondell had examined the proposed new amendments, and declined to discuss them in detail, but Mr. Mondell said he saw no reason now for the house to change its opinion on the 12 1/2 per cent corporation income tax rate. He added, however, that many of these matters would have to be worked out in conference.

In making public the proposed senate amendment, Senator Penrose said they were offered to the committee "in a patriotic and American spirit," and that he did not understand that they were arbitrary or unfair. Declaring that he did not regard them as constituting "radical innovations disturbing the structure of the committee measure, the finance committee chairman said many of them were in no way objectionable to him.

The net change in the estimated revenue as a result of the amendments as proposed was placed by treasury experts at an increase of $19,000,000 in the $2,324,000,000 total of the pending bill.

"New Schedule."

The surtax amendment provides a wholly new schedule beginning with 1 per cent in that part of incomes between $10,000 and $10,000 and increasing 1 per cent for each additional $2,000 up to 7 per cent on incomes between $30,000 and $100,000. Then the rates are 48 per cent between $100,000 and $150,000 and 49 per cent between $150,000 and $200,000. The committee proposal is 1 per cent on $20,000 to $3,000 and gradual increases up to 33 per cent on $68,000.

Under the amendment to the estate tax the present 25 per cent maximum would apply on the amount of estates between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000 and then the rates would be 33 per cent on estates between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000; 35 per cent on estates between $20,000,000 and $25,000,000; and 38 per cent on estates between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000.

The committee is anxious to place its activities and conditions upon which loans may be made in the hands of every bank in Georgia and Florida, from which the money may come, as the committee is not authorized to receive applications from individuals and inquiries should be directed to the War Finance corporation, 515 Palmer building, Atlanta, Ga., or to the nearest member of the committee.

The committee went ahead with consideration of the committee bill today but four hours of the session were consumed in a discussion of the few amendments that were adopted upon the floor.

Eggs a la Buckingham — Make five slices of toast and arrange on platter. Scramble eggs, having the eggs slightly underdone. Pour over toast, sprinkle with your tablespoonful of grated mild cheese. Put in oven to melt cheese and finish cooking eggs.

Baked Fish — In buying fish, take care for grouper fish; it is not as good as salmon. In fact, you will not know the difference and grouper fish is about ten cents per pound cheaper.

Hollandaise Sauce for Fish — One-

wipe and remove the thin outside skin and veins. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, place in a greased wire broiler and broil five minutes, turning often. Remove to a hot platter, garnish with lemon and sprinkle with salt and pepper.

Lyonnaise Potatoes — Slice cold boiled potatoes to make a cupful. Add melted butter and one-half tablespoonful butter with one tablespoon finely chopped onion. Melt 2 tablespoons butter season with salt and pepper, add one-half cup finely chopped parsley.

Baked Fish — In buying fish, take care for grouper fish; it is not as good as salmon. In fact, you will not know the difference and grouper fish is about ten cents per pound cheaper.

Hollandaise Sauce for Fish — One-

half cup butter, yolk 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, one-quarter teaspoon salt, few grains cayenne, one-third cup boiling water. Put butter in a bowl, cover with a spoonful of water, add lemon juice, then divide in three pieces; put one piece in a sauceton with yolk of eggs and lemon juice; place same over bowl of water, add remaining boiling water, and stir constantly with a wire whisk until butter is melted; then add second piece of butter, and third piece when done, add cold water. Cook one minute and season with salt and pepper. If mixture curdles add 2 tablespoons cold water.

Shadow Potatoes — Wash and pare potatoes. Slice thin into a bowl of cold water. Let stand 2 hours, changing water twice. Drain, plunge in a kettle of boiling water and boil one minute. Drain again and cover with cold water. Take from water and dry between towels.

Fry in deep fat until light finely chopped. Cover with strips of bacon thinly cut and bake in hot oven until chicken is tender. Remove to serving dish and pour over the following sauce. To 3 tablespoons tan, taken from dripping pan, add 4 tablespoons flour and pepper, 2 tablespoons green pepper

Collective Suicide or Life

The Question That Will Be Before the Conference on Disarmament — Can Civilization Be Saved?

(The following is issued by the committee on church co-operation.) Is the world a madhouse?

Now, the world is indeed a madhouse. So long as the mad are confined to fight shadows alone they may harm only themselves.

But now the mad, Japan and most of the nations of the world are fighting shadows today. And nations cannot be compelled to stop, or to give up diplomacy, and a nation will take the place of the shadow, and the world, in its turn, will see again mothers and little children of nations dying, suffering worse than death, strong men maimed and butchered, civilization destroyed because of this mad single-mindedness.

We are at war today in our preparation for war.

Formerly, war began when man picked up clubs and set to work to crack each other's skulls. War ended when they laid their clubs aside. Now, we have limb-guns and effective weapons in those days. But by progressive steps came the spear, the bow and arrow, the sling, the catapult, the trebuchet, the match-lock's matchlock, and then the gun fired by the percussion cap, and next the breech-loader, rifle and machine gun.

From cross rivers on logs, either to get at or away from his enemy, man advanced to the raft and dugout, then he developed the ship-ramming, a crime driven by triple rows of galley slaves with oars, the blazing battleships of the Armada, which fought three decks of Nelson, the fleet frigate of John Paul Jones, the armored Merrimac, the current monitor and on to the dreadnaught, belching hellish destruction across miles of ocean, the assassin submarine driving the world into a madhouse, launching hidden hideous death, while above in the clouds massed the aerial bombs dropping infernal ruin, all capable of bringing to naught in the briefest time all that man has wrought throughout the centuries.

With each advance in the art of making instruments to murder and kill, there has come an increase in the number and the amount of time devoted to drill. Still, wars began and ended. Men knew intervals of peace.

Oscar Our Eyes.

Until 1840, it was supposed by the ignorant that the supplies of reduced and limited the horror of war until unfortified cities, women and children, and men not in uniform were safe. Women were freed from all save indirect suffering even after the declaration of war; and that neutral nations minded their own affairs, and nothing to their harm. Now, we know that a madman shooting a useless parasite in a country of which he has never heard, may unleash upon the world a horror, in which the fighting is not confined to men in uniform, but extends to women and young people. Such a war, which no nation can hope to escape, is a horror, in which the smallest part of the fighting is between unformed boys, the brutes of the mad-maelstrom, in which every man, woman and child, every farm and factory and particularly the chemist's laboratory, from which come the means to blot out the lives of whole cities, must be regarded as part of the war machine.

Disgraceful as the shadows are, they are the last thing to shun.

And now men with air, sea and submarine fleets, spreading death by gas, shot, shell, disease and starvation, will mark the end of the world. The madhouse, continued this fighting with shadows, continued, means civilization's death by financial ruin.

What have caused the Protestant ministers of Atlanta to ask Governor Hardwick to set apart Sunday, November 4, for God's judgment of the coming conference on disarmament?

No man-made law can make an end of war. War can be stopped only by the transformation of the hearts and minds of men. If this conference is not brought about, the conference will be set aside.

Will you not join us in working and praying both for the conference and for this transformation?

We beseech you, therefore, by the mercies of God, that you present your bodies to God, who is the author of all that is good.

"Be not overcome by evil, but overcome evil with good."

Surely that Son of Man, who, cradled in His mother's arms in Bethlehem, a man, here to stay, must be He looks at our world today. And all of the Imp of hell must laugh.

Men, nominally at peace with all of the world, has not yet reached the stage where her daughters are encouraged to go to dinner with the sh-rattening wives, driven by triple rows of galley slaves with oars, the blazing battleships of the Armada, which fought three decks of Nelson, the fleet frigate of John Paul Jones, the armored Merrimac, the current monitor and on to the dreadnaught, belching hellish destruction across miles of ocean, the assassin submarine driving the world into a madhouse, launching hidden hideous death, while above in the clouds massed the aerial bombs dropping infernal ruin, all capable of bringing to naught in the briefest time all that man has wrought throughout the centuries.

With each advance in the art of making instruments to murder and kill, there has come an increase in the number and the amount of time devoted to drill. Still, wars began and ended. Men knew intervals of peace.

But now there is no peace.

AMERICUS TO OBSERVE ORPHANS' HOME DAY

Americus, Ga., October 7.—(Special)—Elaborate plans have been made by the Sunday school of the First Methodist church to observe Sunday, October 8, as Orphans' Home day. On that day the Sunday school will make its annual donation to the support of the South Georgia Conference Methodist Orphans' Home, Sunday having been designated as workday for the orphans. Members of the Sunday school are asked to contribute the proceeds of one day's work to the fund, and it is expected a large sum will be raised for the orphans in this manner.

PERSHING WAITING TO VISIT LONDONClues Ridiculed By Accused Nurse In Eastlake Case

Failure of British to Re-ply to Note Delays U. S. Decoration for Unknown Dead Tommy Atkins.

BY HUDDSON HAWLEY,
United News Staff Correspondent

Paris, October 7.—General Pershing is waiting to see his personal physician and an American medical corps picked battalion of six-tenths from the Rhine army, for London's "Order of the British Empire" decoration of friendship—the placing of the congressional medal of honor on the grave of the "Unknown Tommy" in Westminster Abbey.

It developed during the course of General Pershing's conversation with American correspondents here today that the British government had yet failed to reply to the cable from Washington dispatched on August 24 inquiring as to the arrangements for the ceremony.

"They had something about finding a soldier whom they said had been buried from an American famous composite battalion which marched amid gusts of expressions of amazed admiration from the British people," said a reporter who was in the British camp a day ago. "The soldiers are very anxious to be on the move as they are in a composite state now and they are to be paid off on Saturday."

Pershing is due to sail for the United States on October 20, and in time to live up to the schedule he will need speedy action from the British. There is no inkling as to the explanation of Great Britain's hesitancy about accepting the medal.

CITY OF MACON OPENS EMPLOYMENT BUREAUDr. McNaughton Visits Friends in Macon Who Secured Release

Macon, Ga., October 7.—(Special).—Back from a pleasure trip which carried him to his old home in Georgia, George's most famous prisoner, recently paroled, today arrived in Macon en route to Millidgeville. He will visit towns in the state farm system, spent eight of the eleven and a half years he has been isolated from the world, under sentence of death, and has saved the lives of hundreds of prisoners during the thre epidemics of 1918 and 1920, and where he saved the life of M. F. Green, who had been beaten up by Bill Green, a fellow prisoner.

Afterward, Dr. McNaughton will go direct to Atlanta where he will go to the manufacture of a preparation for pneumonia, practicing a little on the side. Dr. McNaughton left the state farm September 25.

Those seeking employment have been requested by the board to list their special occupations if any, and register with the bureau, and to give the scale of wages they are willing to work for. Any man who registers as a skilled laborer will receive preference in employment as to his competency.

The doctor will put on within a day or two a "spruce-up" campaign to get up candidates for the winter months. All householders will be asked to give at least a day's work around the premises to compensate on people who aided him in securing his freedom.

TO NAME DENNEY PORT COLLECTOR

Prominent Savannah Business Man to Be Appointed Collector of Port at That City.

BY JAMES A. HOLLOWAY.

Constitution Bureau,
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, October 7.—(By Constitution League.) W. E. Denney, of Savannah, will be appointed collector of the port of Savannah. The nomination has been agreed upon by the secretary of the treasury, and will be sent to the whitehouse for the president's signature next few days.

Mr. Denney is vice-president of the Georgia Supply company dealers in sawmill machinery, and is well known as a business man. His determination to appoint Denney, who carries the endorsement of J. L. Phillips, chairman of the Georgia state republican committee, will come as a surprise to many publicists, among who aspired to this berth. It has been generally accepted that Donald Clark, a member of Savannah's most prominent in party affairs, would receive the appointment. Clarke Greer, of Augusta, who has been active in the various political fights in the party for several months, was also an applicant.

The statement that Denney would be appointed, however, was equivocally made this afternoon by Chairman Phillips after a call upon Secretary Mellon.

MERCHANT MARINE DISCUSSED FRIDAY AT CABINET MEET

Washington, October 7.—The troubled fortune of the American merchant marine was the subject of a long consultation today between President Harding and his cabinet.

The whole question of rehabilitating the merchant carrier industry was considered in detail, and international aspects but there was no indication that the discussion reached a point of definite decision as to policy. The other legislation which was sought or new trade agreements with foreign countries consummated remain uncertain.

An interim report by Chairman Lester of the shipping board, covering particularly the important sections of the Jones shipping act, was submitted to the cabinet, much of the material for the cabinet's deliberations. The report has not been given to the public but it is understood to be to the effect that provision of the law directing the president to abrogate certain trade treaties which conflict with the preferential authorization of the new statute.

Case Against Doctor Dropped, as Warrant Was Issued on Sunday

St. Petersburg, Fla., October 7.—The case against Dr. T. H. Green, prominent local physician, arrested several days ago on a charge of malpractice, was dismissed today because the warrant for his arrest was issued on Sunday.

THE PUBLIC AND JOBS.

In the organized effort that is being put forth through the nation-wide conference on unemployment, sponsored by the national government, to create jobs for the jobless, there is much that can and should be done by local governments toward its greatest possible success.

What the administration is fully cognizant of that fact, and keenly desirous that no American municipality may shirk its share of responsibility in this regard, is plainly evident from recent statements emanating from the white house.

Under date of October 4, The New York Herald carried the following significant dispatch from its Washington bureau:

"President Harding made it plain today that no city must shirk its responsibility in helping restore business to a normal basis. To callers he amplified his view to the states issued from the white house that the problem of the unemployed must become the basis for immediate and diligent work everywhere to prevent serious suffering during the coming winter."

"Mr. Harding seemed gratified that some cities have responded so readily, but he left no doubt that he wants all city and state governments to join in the movement."

The obvious meaning of this is that the federal administration expects all city, county and state governments to push public improvements to the utmost of their ability during the coming fall and winter months, thus to provide employment for thousands of men who, and whose families, perhaps, would otherwise suffer from the want of the necessities of life, and in many instances become subjects of charity and a public burden.

The president is right in his position; and his appeal should receive ready and ungrudging response everywhere, particularly in the south.

There is more public development work to be done in the south, perhaps, than in any other section of the country. And we have here the advantage of a climate which makes out-door work—such as highway construction, street improvements, the erection of buildings, etc.—possible during the months when the north and east are snow-bound and ice-locked.

We have what builders characterize an "all-year-round climate;" our building season is never closed.

And right now, when there is such urgent need for every hour's work that can be provided, our state county and municipal governments should take fullest possible advantage of that fact by crowding public works to the limit.

CRIME INSURANCE.

Insurance of automobiles against accident, fire or theft comes properly under the head of legitimate business, but for insurance companies to insure cars against conviction for violation of the prohibition laws, is obviously improper if not actually criminal.

The commissioners of corporations in Arizona a few days ago ordered all insurance companies doing business in that state to abandon this line immediately and to cancel all such policies in existence.

His example should be followed by similar action in every other state in which policies of this character have been or may now legally be issued. No attempt has been made to enter Georgia by companies selling such policies.

The authorities are finding it hard enough to enforce the prohibition laws, with all the prescribed hardships and discomforts incurred by violators, and to minimize the penalties to which the law-breaker is liable, by safeguarding him against property loss in the event of his capture, would only make law enforcement that much more difficult.

If it were right and proper to insure automobiles against confiscation by prohibition enforcement and police officers and sheriffs, it would be equally right to insure burglars' kits and the paraphernalia of professional gamblers against seizure by the authorities of the law; or, for that matter, to insure whisky runners, bootleggers, bumbo steerers, pickpockets, etc., against loss of time in prison in the event of their capture, conviction and incarceration.

The institutions of orderly government would soon lose their claim to respect, to say nothing of their effectiveness, if men deliberately planning to violate any law were permitted to insure themselves against the legal penalties for wrongdoing.

Insurance against the penalties for crime—in other words, crime insurance—is a line of business which no state or community can afford to tolerate.

"Confiscation insurance" on automobiles is not general, of course; but nowhere under the American flag should it be permitted.

BUSINESS AND A DREAM.

Editor McIntosh, of The Albany (Ga.) Herald, summoned a stenographer the other day and leaning back in the oft-uneasy editorial chair, said: "Please take this, and started out with—

"Now fall business will open up with a real rush. The retail stores will be taxed to care for the rush of fall buying which was so long delayed by the unreasonably hot weather of September—"

That was a right introductory paragraph for a bright business editorial on the return of good times to Georgia and, in fact, the entire country.

But just then the editorial glance wandered to an "October window" that presented a south Georgia landscape of such dream-like Autumn beauty that the typewriter clicked the dream of it and the busy world went by in a dream!

And this is what the dream said—

"Here is October, with the red and gold and purple leaves of autumn in her tresses and the yellowing grass a-waving at her feet. October with her soft air chilling with falling leaves and tickle winds that blow from everywhere."

"'Tis the month of wonderment, when the ancient Mother of the Woods and Fields begins calling them to the long winter sleep. These fitful winds that blow first from north, then south, now from east, now west—these have in their very fleshiness the harbingers of those coming days when the trees will stand naked and the weeds wave in saffron fields like restless ghosts of summer's greenness. Already the nuts are falling, the butterflies fly southward like an army in retreat, the migratory birds show a restlessness which presages early journeys to lands the winter never reaches, and there's a yellow glow in the sunset like that where the golden rod waves."

The oak has matured her acorns and the hickory her nuts, and now the falling leaves of the wild grape lay bare the stems where her dark gems were nourished till they dropped from the weight of their very sweetness."

Some one else wrote the business editorial that morning—or, rather, completed it, from the paragraph whose dictation was interrupted by the entrance of that glorified, garlanded guest—October.

As for Editor McIntosh, of our esteemed Albany contemporary, we have no doubt at all that he "took to the woods," led by the dream-picture to lonely golden coverts where the secret thrush sings sweetest; or to Autumn orchards where Mister Mockingbird still is singing at his best—the singer to whom all songs seem the same for the making of his unmatched music.

Or the dream led him to harvest fields, spread all over that heaven-favored country, with Autumn's golden gifts heaped high for Winter's peace and comfort.

This is where the dream becomes the reality over all the fruitful harvest lands of Georgia, in whose homes the winter-fires will sing when the song-birds are silent.

A brisk, brightening business world it is now, and the dream-sweet Autumn season has helped to make it such.

And Editor McIntosh knows—as the whole glad world knows—that while Business seems a coldly calculating thing, with visions of the practical side of life alone, it still has the seeing eye and the understanding heart, and doors that are wide with welcome for beautiful, everyday dreams.

Putting Them Wise.

"Edgar Allan Poe used 'Auber' to rhyme with 'October,'" says Colonel George Bailey, "but clearly that is not available for season stuff. October poets must face the circumstance that 'Auber' is the only word in the English language that is a rhyme for 'October,' and there are yet many people who are highly prejudiced against it."

ASK BANKERS' AID TO MARKET CROPS

Colonel Ousley Tells Financiers of Georgia Cotton Growers' Co-operative Association Work.

The first direct move to secure the formal endorsement and active support of the organized banking forces of the state for the organization campaign of the Georgia Cotton Growers' Co-operative association, was made at an informal meeting of several members of the Atlanta Clearing House association, held at the office of the Clearing House association Friday afternoon, to hear Colonel Clarence Ousley, distinguished agricultural economist of Texas, discuss the California plan of co-operative marketing for cotton.

The meeting was called by President Henry Davis, and among the other bankers present were Robert F. Maddox and J. S. Kennedy, of the Atlanta National; H. Warner Martin and John Ross, of the Lowry National; Henry Cohen, of the Citizens and Southern; G. C. Evans, of the Fulton National, and J. S. Owens, of the Central Bank and Trust corporation.

Will Address Bankers.

A thorough awakening of the religious spirit in Atlanta was argued through "Cyclone Mack" McLendon, in his Friday night sermon at the Tabernacle. The evangelist was in the city last week and had been invited to speak at the Tabernacle under the sway of his eloquence.

Some of the pithy sayings of the preacher:

"We want to have a revival here that will close all the dance halls in town."

"We want to make him mournful that will make the devil uneasy every time he hears anyone talking about going to Atlanta."

"The suggestion was made for plainness in speech, stating that he did not believe in beating the air."

"The suggestion was made that all its members would be present and some definite action on the part of the Clearing House association might be taken."

Colonel Ousley stated that he would be glad to do so.

The suggestion was then advanced that through a committee of the清教徒协会, the matter be taken up immediately with leaders of the Georgia Bankers' association for action by the association.

Colonel Ousley then deferred action upon this suggestion by asking that all those present first make a thorough study of the contract, to consult legal advice upon its validity and value, as had been done in the case of the committee from the清教徒协会, before it was presented before the association before its endorsement of the project in that state.

President Davis announced that he would appoint such a committee within the next two or three days.

Colonel Ousley, in his talk, broached several new ideas upon the importance and value of the present co-operative marketing movement in cotton which have not heretofore been brought forward.

He discussed the immediate economic benefits of the movement but argued interestingly that a federal law, if passed, would be conservative and business-like an undertaking as this, redounding to the profit of everybody, was fraught with the greatest benefit to our whole commonwealth. In that the farmer in his present desperate condition, seeing no economic way out, and being compelled to submit to drastic political and class action ending in his own and every body else's ruin.

Texas Operations.

Also, together with W. O. Moser, secretary of the American Cotton Growers' exchange who was likewise present at the conference, he gave much detailed information concerning the present condition of the business operation of the Texas association now actively handling and selling cotton.

Before returning to Atlanta, Colonel Ousley addressed the student-body of the State Agricultural college and the University in the university city of Athens, Georgia, where he was introduced by Dr. A. M. Soule.

Following this meeting, he was in conference with Dr. L. H. Hardeman, chairman of the executive committee of the board of trustees of the State College of Agriculture. Dr. J. Phil Jones, president of the college, and others, concerning negotiations now under way to secure the active co-operation of the college forces in the cotton movement.

Starting Sunday.

When the first chill days of the late autumn came the four were once more together. Dan, Kate, Black Bart and Satan. Buck and old Joe Cumberland made the background of their scenes which kept the wedding a matter of the indefinite future. He would assign no reason for his wish, but Kate knew it.

It was not well, she knew. Day after day, as the autumn advanced, Dan went out with the wolf and the wild birds, and ran across the snow alone. She did not ask him where or why, for she understood that to be alone was as necessary to him as to others, but the cold could not explain it all and the cold grew fitter in her. At last on an evening when the three sat before the fire in solemn silence, Dan said, "I am the snow man, where among the hills, she could hear it no longer."

"Do you really think," she burst out, "that the old wilderness is still in you?"

"Bush," said Buck, and raised a hand for silence.

Far away they heard the wail of a wolf crying over the moon. She rose and went out on the porch of the house. The others followed her. Outside they found not only the wolf, but also the wind, and the snow, silver glimmering where the moonlight fell upon it. Then they heard the wind, the howl, the whining, and at last the wolf riding across the house. A short distance away he stopped. Black Bart dropped to his haunches and waited again.

Dan was looking toward the window.

"Look!" said Kate, and pointed.

Across the white circle of the moon drove a flying wedge of wild geese.

"They're flying south," said Kate. "They're flying south!" he repeated.

His eyes looked far away. The wolf slipped to his side and licked his hand.

"Kate, I'd like to follow the wild geese."

Old Joe shaded his eyes and the big hands of Buck were locked together.

"Are you unhappy, Dan?" she said.

"The snow is come," he muttered under his breath.

He began pacing again and that singular step.

"When I went out to Satan in the snow, I think I saw him," found him Kate.

She rose and faced him with a little gesture of surrender.

"Then you must follow the wild geese."

"Do you mind me goin', Kate?"

"No."

"But your eyes are shinlin'!"

"It's only the reflection of the Black."

Black Bart whined softly. Suddenly Dan straightened and threw up his arms, and then with a shout of exultation, Buck shuddered and dropped his head.

"I am far behind," said Dan.

"He caught her in his arms, kissed her eyes and lips, and then whiled and ran from the room with that singular step."

"Kate!" croaked Buck Daniels, "you'll let him go! We've all lost him forever!"

"Go call him back," pleaded Joe.

"He will stay for your sake."

She whispered, "I would rather see the wild geese who are only beautiful when they are wild."

"But you've lost him, Kate. don't you know?"

"The wild geese fly north again in spring," said Buck.

"I'm far behind," said Dan.

"He will be with us again," she said.

"I am far behind," said Dan.

THE END.

COMMITTEE ON IDLE COMPLETES REPORT

Washington, October 7.—Practically completion of a majority report on permanent measures for the betterment of business throughout the country was effected today by the manufacturers' committee of the national conferences on unemployment. When a minority report will be submitted to the full conference, which it resembles Tuesday, the committee will be disbanded.

On the question of business readjustment the majority of the committee was unanimous in holding the view that readjustment of wages and prices downward was a necessary precedent to a commercial readjustment from which the welfare of the nation's industry could spring.

In connection with the re-adjustment process the report was to permit lower freight rates to permit of a greater flow of commerce.

Passage of the railway funding bill, which is now pending in Congress, was understood to be regarded as an important step in connection with the discontinuance of function of the road labor board which came in conflict with the activities of the national conference commission.

Legislation changing the Adams' eight-hour law was understood to be suggested by the committee, to more readily accomplish industrial readjustment. On the subject of taxation the report was understood to propose a program lightening unnecessary burdens while at the same time providing ample revenues for the federal government.

FORMER INSPECTOR IS GIVEN SENTENCE IN NARCOTIC CASE

Lynchburg, Va., October 7.—Judge Lemuel C. McDowell here today denied a motion of counsel for Mr. T. H. This is the opening dance of the fall season and all members are cordially invited, as this dance is the first of series to be held every Saturday evening at the Elks' club, for members only.

Bush—Carder.

An event of cordial interest to their many friends was the marriage of Miss Edna Bush, 18, with W. W. Carter, on Friday morning, October 13, at St. Phillip's cathedral, Dean Thomas H. Johnston officiating.

Owing to recent operations on the family of the bride, the wedding was a very quiet one, only the immediate friends being present.

The tea table had in the center a basket filled with the pink and white roses decorated the apartments.

The honor guest was presented with a French sachet and pin cushion doll. The first and consolation four doors open. A few minutes later John and Will Reagen, two of Reagen's tenants, appeared on the scene.

One of the blacks is said to be the mastermind of some negroes in the automobile as those coming from the farm. A hurried investigation followed and then the alarm was sounded.

When the body was found, early Friday morning, the arms and hands were rigidly pressed against the victim.

Four of Reagen's tenants are now in jail at Conyers, pending the outcome of the investigation.

Four negroes were now identified as witnesses, but the belief is that some one of them may be connected with the crime has been freely expressed by lawyers and the surrounding territory.

Expert Declares Series Is Running True to Form; Says Mays Will Hurl

Fullerton Asserts That Seventh Inning Yesterday Was the Wildest in World's Series History.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.
Copyright, 1921, by The Constitution.

New York, October 7.—New York's sports editor asserted yesterday that Yankees is handicapped of four runs smothered the Yankees today and entirely reversed the prospects of series, which was looking up with the world's championship within their grasp. The Yankees, with two to one in their favor, were beaten yesterday. Up to the present minute the Giants have had to do the guessing. It is now the turn of the board of directors, which is operating the American Legion team, to come guessing on their own account.

At the end of the first half of the opening of the today's game the chances of the Giants were about as bad as Able Cohen's chance of being elected president of the Klan. Fred Toney, upon whom the Giants had relied as an almost certain winner, faltered, went wild and his wildness gave the Yankees four less runs.

Then, with the game and the series within easy reaching distance, the Yankees, with a frantic counter assault tied the score.

Business Trying.

Bob Shawkey had no business trying to pitch the world series game, both of strategists which is running the Yankees decided upon merely because two good right handed pitchers had beaten the Bronx, even a fair, major league pitcher, but the Yankees stuck to him. And then, in making the game hard, chose Quinn, who essayed to stop a real ball club with a spitball and a fair curve. He did it.

It opened the seventh inning when the Giants swarmed upon him, drove him from the mound, then slaughtered him and scored eight runs before he could be stopped.

It was the wildest inning in the history of the world's series, and the world's best team on record any team ever suffered. All the base hits that have been scored in the systems of the Giants for the last nine years, and all but for the fact that Rawlings made a perfectly useless attempt to steal second, the Giants might have been beaten by the Yankees.

The importance of the game cannot be overestimated. Instead of going on to three shot the Giants would be eliminated, and the Yankees would have to go through the same program, find a team and come back in the next game with Maye.

The Big Mistake.

The strategists decided to try Shawkey and if they got by him, to take a change with Harper for the next. Now the guess is up to them. If they guess Harper for the next battle they are taking a chance, for the Yankees can even up the count, in which case the National leagues would be favored. If they guess Harper for the next, then the Yankees will be favored, and Maye finds a non-pitching day, they take a chance of starting him before he has had sufficient rest. In either case it is base full in the same inning that completed the rout.

It was a very little good baseball played, the pitching was too bad and too erratic. The villain of the piece, it seemed to me, was Ruth, who was erratic in making the pitchers pitch out in the hopes of catching runners. Not once did he out-guess the Giants, not even, while the world of Pool, captain of the Purple Hurricane, was decidedly the best. Pool did the punting, recycling no fewer than seven pitched balls and he looked bad in handling them.

It is a truism in baseball that the catcher who makes pitchers pitch out is protecting himself from the players. It is even possible that Quinn might have escaped heavy punishment had he been pitching to another catcher. The rest of course leaves the series all in the air. The dope indicated that the Giants will send Douglas to the plate in the eighth inning, and the Yankee board of strategy must settle its own problem. It had the other team guessing and turned the guess to itself. In the ninth, I think, he'll be sent to the plate, whether the team won or lost the third game.

ATHENS HIGH DOWNS B.H.S.

Athens, Ga., October 7.—(Special.) In a fast and furious game of football Athens High defeated Coach Davis' Purple Hurricane of Boys' High by a score of 14 to 0, on Sanford field, this afternoon.

The game was fast and very interesting, the ball seesawing from one side to the other in the first half with the exception of the last few minutes of the half when the boys' team, who carried the ball to the locals' one foot line when time was called. Had Boys' High started the rush a few minutes before they would have scored.

In the second half, with practically every play on the part of the Boys' High laid out, the Athenians were able to score two touchdowns. Kilpatrick and Grayson were the heroes of the day, each having seven, while the world of Pool, captain of the Purple Hurricane, was decidedly the best. Pool did the punting, recycling no fewer than seven pitched balls and he looked bad in handling them.

Miss Stirling in Final Match Today Against Miss M. Hollins

Atlanta Girl Defeats Mrs. Vanderbeck 1 Up, While Miss Hollins Beats Miss Rosenthal.

Deal, N. J., October 7.—Rising to the occasion at a moment when her success looked extremely doubtful, Miss Alexa Stirling, of Atlanta, present national woman golf champion, advanced to the final stage in the tournament at the Hollywood club Friday by downing her most prominent rival, Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck, of Philadelphia, on the green. Miss Stirling will meet Marion Hollins of Westbrook, who defeated Elaine Rosenthal of Chicago in the semi-final struggle, in the finale Saturday.

Miss Stirling and Mrs. Vanderbeck halved the first hole, and the Atlanta girl won the second when she was trapped on her second shot. She avenged the match on the third owing to carelessness on her opponent's part, a remarkable 100-foot putt on the ninth hole. Miss Stirling a half, after she had over-played her tee shot.

Hole-in-Fives.

The fifth hole was halved in fives, and on the sixteenth the champion made a splendid recovery from a double and won the hole with a four. The seventh was halved with sixes, and the eighth with fours, the opponent's indifferent shot. She maintained the advantage to the end, playing safely all the way and winning the extra hole 5 up.

Miss Hollins was cut in 48 and in 43, for an 89. Miss Rosenthal was out in 44 to Mrs. Vanderbeck's 45. Alexa took three putts on the tenth, and lost the hole, 7 to 6. The

All Eyes on Georgia-Furman

BY FUZZY WOODRUFF

Easily Best Game in Dixie Today

It's getting to the point now where we might expect something of southern football. Today will see the first clashes on which some can be drawn on the strength of the marksmanship of some of the squads of the leading institutions, though it does seem that most of them have arranged their schedules with a view to pinching just as little football as possible this year.

Undoubtedly the best game from an Atlanta point of view will be the big game which southern teams figure will be the Georgia-Furman clash at Athens, which will draw the set for itself whether the Purple Hurricane is half that has been touted to be by such eminent authorities as those two famous Bills, Kalaska and Frank.

Frankly, I expect Georgia to be the Bill, even Georgia is in for a tough time and has been for decimation or decapitation or something else horrible.

Any game being taken very seriously at the University of Georgia. The surest sign of that is a story that has been sent broad-cast to all the schools, whether Collis, nor Hartley, nor Fite, or any other, has been touted to be by such eminent authorities as those two famous Bills, Kalaska and Frank.

Personally, I expect Georgia to win and win rather handily. Georgia has any reason to bow its head before the Red and Black at the hands of the little South Carolina school, but just the same Georgia has got to win that game.

Suppose Georgia should lose, how would the Red and Black warriors backfire on the long journey to New Haven? They will be beaten by the team with the stigma of defeat at the hands of a little fresh water school smeared all over the hearts of every Red and Black Jersey.

According to these reports, no team has any reason to bow its head before the Red and Black at the hands of the little South Carolina school, but just the same Georgia has got to win that game.

Convention of Kiwanians Big Success, Says Wessels

With a 100 per cent record in attendance, the annual convention of the Kiwanis club which has just closed at Macon was the most successful ever held in the Georgia district, according to E. S. Wessels, retiring district governor, who returned to Atlanta Friday. Mr. Wessels was succeeded by General W. L. Wessels, of Macon, as district governor.

Mr. Wessels retires now as district governor instead of waiting until November 12, in order to give General Harris an opportunity to award the charters to six new Kiwanis clubs which are to be added to the state convention.

There were 462 delegates present at the Macon convention representing twenty clubs, the attendance having been increased since Mr. Wessels was elected district governor. Of Georgia's nineteen clubs have been added to the list. The Atlanta club was the original club, and the others are the newest new clubs were delivered by Mr. Wessels.

General governors ordinarily would have expired December 31 of this year, but with the approval of the state convention, it was decided best to allow the new administration to take charge at once, as it is expected that the new clubs will be added to the roster by the end of the year.

Just before he relinquished his duties as district governor, which he

W. A. Wright is Teacher.

In addition to his high attainments in surgery, and especially in the study of goiter, Dr. Jones was highly qualified to teach, having written upon surgical subjects. Students under him attached great importance to his lectures and instructions, and his writings have been published in the leading medical journals of the country.

He was for several years a visiting professor at the Georgia Medical and Graduate schools, and visiting gynecologist of Wesley Memorial Hospital. He was a member of the Public Council, Southern Medical and Dental Medical Associations. Dr. Jones was placed in charge of the surgical department upon merging of the Atlanta and Georgia medical and dental school of Emory University.

Dr. Jones was born in Chattanooga, the son of John A. and Mary Jones. His mother was a sister of Dr. W. S. Kendrick, a well-known Atlanta physician, with whom Dr. Jones spent some time. He graduated in medicine from the Atlanta College of Physicians and Surgeons, with first honors, in 1901. After graduation, he remained at Johns Hopkins in Baltimore, Md., where he made a special study of internal diseases and pathology, under Professors Osler and Barker.

First Work Published.

Dr. Jones' first published work was "Notes on Obstetrics and Gynecology," written during senior year in college. He spent the summer of 1901 studying gynecology under Dr. E. E. Montgomery, in Philadelphia, and obtained his second work, "Hill's Second Work," "Outlines of Physiology," which ran through a number of editions.

Dr. Jones then became a prime mover in organizing the Atlanta School of Medicine, in association with Drs. Kendrick, Noble, and Finch, and became its first director of the city when the school opened, and he held that position until it consolidated in 1913 with the Georgia College of Physicians and Surgeons, to form the Atlanta Medical College. He became professor of gynecology in this college, and afterward was chairman of the department of surgery, retaining his position upon the merging of this institution with the Emory medical school.

LOST AND FOUND

LOST—Silver bracelet, pencil; gold all coil which begins at Armistice day, and ends at Thanksgiving, were discussed at a mass meeting this afternoon.

This campaign has got to be a real campaign, and the people throughout the entire country and the apes must be less emotional but more rational than it was during the war, asserted Dr. Samuel A. Rose, president of secretaries of the Red Cross. "The responsibility is on our individuals and on our localities."

The eliminating feature of the campaign is that the pageant participated in by two thousand persons with an accompanying chorus of one thousand voices, and the spirit of service as manifest down through the ages, finding expression today in the program of the Red Cross.
